Disaster Recovery Checklist

- ✓ Contact your insurance adjuster immediately and keep them updated of any changes.
- ✓ Start seeking out current replacement costs for items you'll be including in your claim rather than depending solely on historical costs.
- ✓ Document the damage to your property and possessions thoroughly. Take pictures or video, if possible.
- ✓ Make any minor repairs that you can do safely to minimize further damage to your home and keep track of all expenses.
- ✓ If your home is unlivable, contact your utility company to turn off your water and gas or electric services.
- ✓ Do not make any permanent repairs until you get approval from your insurance company and confirm your repair policy provisions.
- ✓ Beware of contractors who claim to be insurance claim specialists and may ask you to sign an agreement such as an Assignment of Benefits contract, which allows them to contact your insurance company and seek approval or repairs for you.
- ✓ Check to make sure any contractors you are considering hiring are properly licensed and have up-to-date workers compensation and liability insurance.
- ✓ Do not hand over an insurance check to a contractor for repairs prior to work being started.

Watch Out for Storm Chasers

Better Business Bureau is warning homeowners:

Watch out for "storm chasers." Some are out of town contractors who may leave unfinished or shoddy work. Others are out-and-out scammers.

Find businesses you can trust on BBB.org.

Resist high-pressure sales and hasty decisions.

Get at least 3 estimates in writing; be wary of very low estimates. Check on required local permits needed before work begins.

Check on required liability insurance (theirs and yours).

Don't pay in advance or in full until the job is done.

Ask door-to-door contractors for identification, licensing and permits.

Pay by credit card for additional protection in case of fraud.

Get a written contract with price, work detail, and a schedule. Be wary regarding work in places you can't see (roof, attic, ducts, etc.)

Disaster victims should never feel pressured to make a decision by an unknown contractor. Start With Trust and look for the BBB Accredited Business Seal. For reliable information, lists of BBB Accredited Businesses by industry and BBB Business Profiles you can trust on local businesses, visit BBB.org.
